The Challenge of Today is . . .

to prepare ourselves for college and for vocations in business . . .
to learn new and better techniques in agriculture, the backbone of American economy . . .

to understand the responsibilities connected with family life and to realize that the American home is the strongest link in the chain of our democracy . . .

to keep our bodies strong, and through self-discipline to make ourselves fair and just in our relationships with others . . .

to know what our country stands for and why it is looked upon as the hope of all those who love freedom . . .

to see the ways, the needs, and the problems of all the peoples of the world . . .

to learn to communicate our ideas and beliefs clearly and forcefully to others . . .

to comprehend the discoveries of science which have so recently placed the entire world into a state of awe and wonder . . .

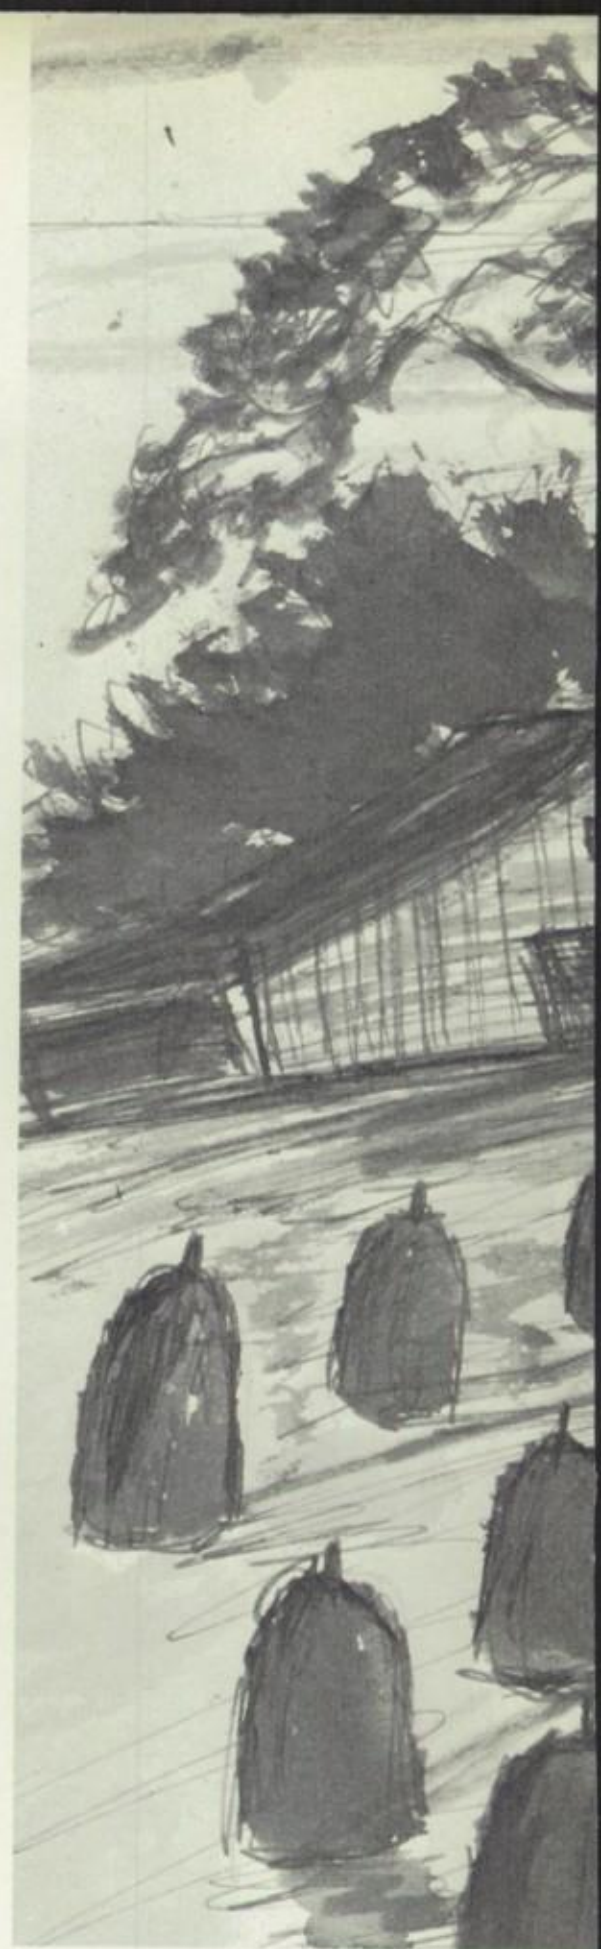

to learn by reading about the experiences of others to better understand ourselves . . .

and finally to bring our hearts and minds to respect the wisdom of God, whose simple message was that love and understanding can conquer all problems everywhere.

The 1962 Nottoway presents the story of how our education has made us aware of these responsibilities and how it has helped us to realize that the challenge which faces the world today must be met with courage by us, for we are the leaders and the followers of tomorrow.

Morning Devotional

Teacher, advisor, friend, and mother--she has been all these and more to us during our five years at Southampton High. She has constantly lightened our burdens and made the world seem a little brighter. Our problems have been her problems. Never thinking of herself, she always puts her students first. No problem is too small nor too large for her understanding heart. Her influence will remain with us long after we leave Southampton.

Because words alone cannot express the admiration we feel for her, we, the senior class of 1962, with heart-felt pride and humble gratitude dedicate the 1962 Nottoway to --- MRS. ED TRICE.

Believing that athletics have a very definite part to play in the growth of a person, we seek to provide the best in equipment and interscholastic competition for our teams. Mental and physical growth cannot be separated. Each must be kept in proper perspective. When each is kept in proper balance, we produce a wholesome individual; too much of either and the problem student is the result.

We are not as concerned about a winning record as we are about whether or not the individual has achieved for his betterment and has learned to take his place in society as a useful citizen
